is very resourceful.

Marie

all wings with great talent for magical but absolutely NO talent for magic!

Captain Jim K.

talent for diplomacy, steering
the wheel, sailing...

Thus Far...

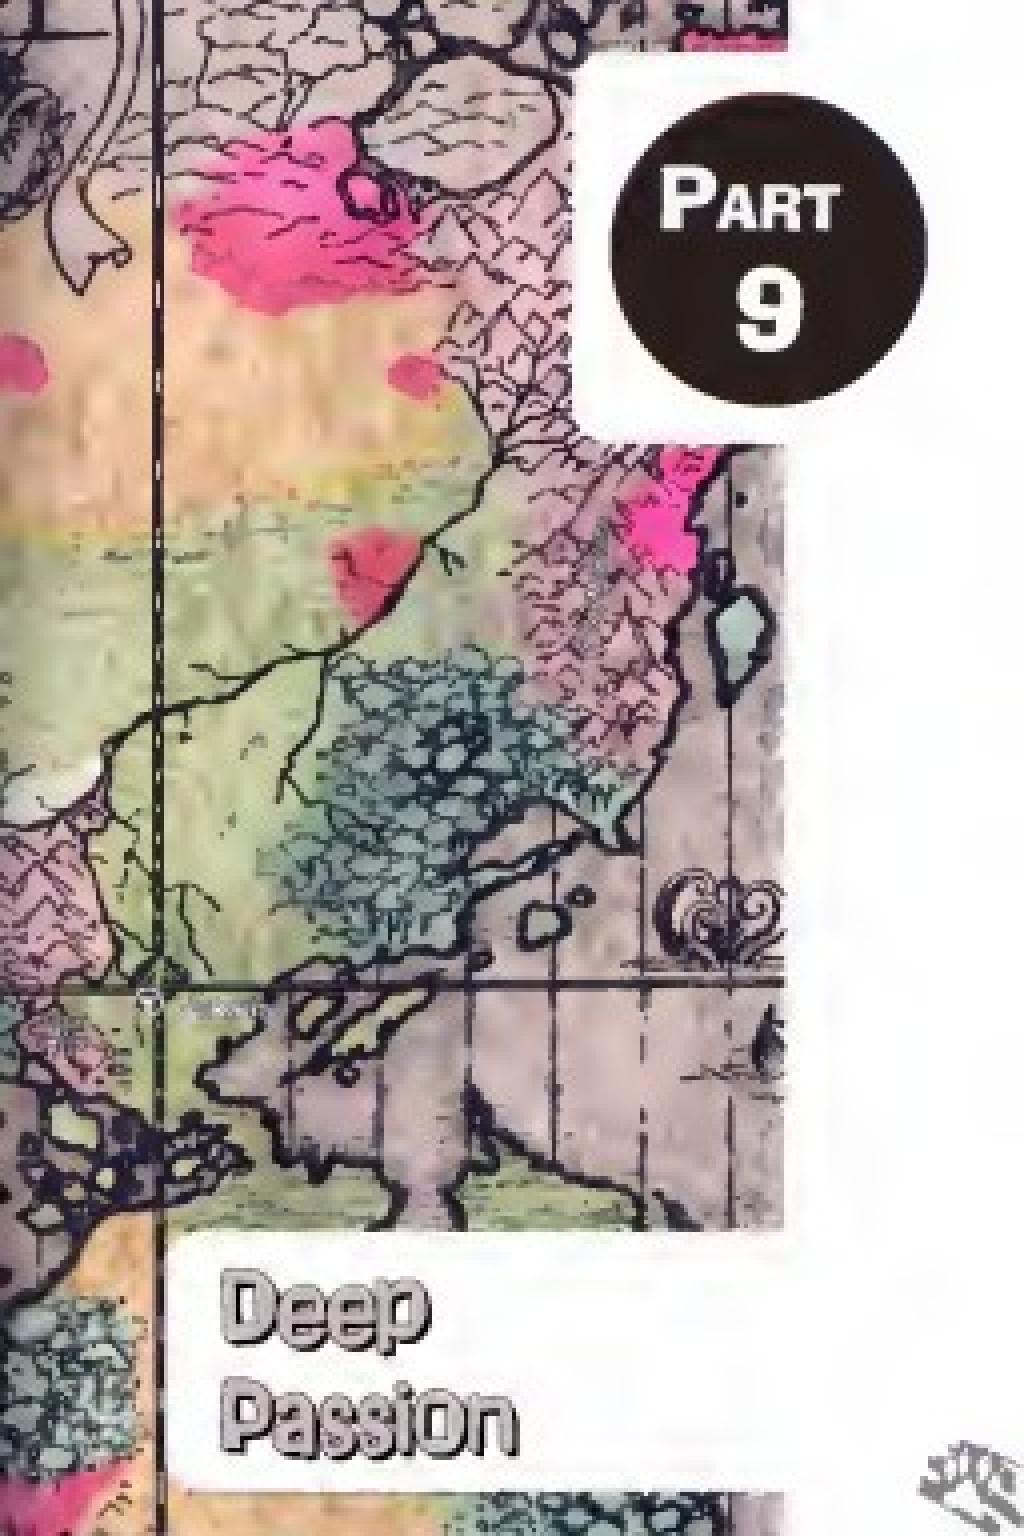

After being attacked by Lord Arsonial, Ugandora and her companion Tark are separated and end up into the sea. Fortunately, they come to in a region of magic water, which can be inhabited by surface creatures.

Blind, Tark is mortally wounded by a mysterious enemy seemingly related to the logoblotter's past. As for Ugandora, she falls victim to a trap, a sea elf commands her to go inside an underwater cave, where she finds yet another Ruby of Virtue - however, by moving the stone, the sea elf spirit and a monstrosity will be released.

On the surface, Santoro and Marie travel on board the Rivendell. The ship's captain, the pirate Jim K., used to be Marie's partner, and he doesn't hold his tongue when it comes to showing his knowledge of Marie's past deeds and dirty secrets or the world's greatest secretaria race.

• 100 JOURNAL OF
DISASTER RESEARCH

A vibrant, abstract illustration of a fantastical creature, likely a dragon or lizard. The creature has a large, expressive blue eye, a long, forked tongue, and a body covered in scales in shades of red, orange, and white. It is shown in a dynamic, swirling pose, as if it's flying or moving rapidly. The background is a soft, light blue, and the overall style is reminiscent of stained glass or a dreamlike vision.
